

Rooted in Maldives: A Celebration of Local and Home-Grown Flavours

At Dusit Thani Maldives, we believe that truly exceptional cuisine begins at the source — with ingredients that are fresh, local, and responsibly grown. Our commitment to sustainability and authenticity is reflected in every dish we serve, and it begins just steps away from our kitchens.

Much of the produce featured in our menus is lovingly cultivated in our own Chef's Garden. This lush, organic sanctuary is home to a variety of herbs, fruits, vegetables, and edible flowers — all handpicked at peak freshness to bring vibrant, garden-to-table flavours to your plate. From aromatic lemongrass and basil to juicy papayas and chillies ripened under the Maldivian sun, each ingredient tells a story of care, seasonality, and connection to the land.

We also proudly source all of our fish from within the Maldives, partnering with local fishermen who follow traditional, low-impact methods. This ensures not only the highest quality and freshness, but also supports local livelihoods and the long-term health of our marine ecosystems.

Where possible, we extend our sourcing to local farmers and producers across the atolls, always choosing ingredients that are responsibly grown, harvested, or caught. In doing so, we reduce our environmental footprint, support the island economy, and create a dining experience that is both sustainable and deeply rooted in place.

When you dine with us, you're not only enjoying exquisite food — you're part of a shared commitment to honouring the natural richness of the Maldives and nurturing a more sustainable future, one bite at a time.
